SEEKS EIGHTEEN MONTHS EXTENSION GAS AGREEMENT

SHORT TERM AGREEMENT TO GO BEFORE PUBLIC UTILITIES BOARD

This is the official record of the proceedings of the council of the Town of Wainwright at its adjourned regular meeting in the council chamber on Tuesday, May 14th.

The members of council present at this meeting were Mayor J. G. McDermott and Councillors Link, Lissimore, Adams, McLeod and Huntingford.

A motion relative to a short term extension of the gas franchise was introduced by Councillor Link at the regular meeting, and this, by motion of Councillor Huntingford was again introduced and unanimously passed, viz:

"That the short term extension agreement, drawn by the town's legal advisers, terminating December, 1936, be placed in the hands of the town secretary, with instructions to immediately take steps to have same properly executed by both interested parties and thereafter forwarded to the Board of Public Utilities for its approval."

The following resolution was then introduced by Councillor Huntingford, viz:

"WHEREAS it is necessary that every endeavor be made to gather all possible tax moneys now outstanding; and

WHEREAS it is deemed expedient that every endeavor be made to

Wainwright Wins Season's Opener

On Sunday afternoon last the 1st was lifted off the baseball season when the Hughtens' ball team motored over to mix it with the local boys. After the runs had been counted up Wainwright were on the long end of a 15-5 score. Both teams showed the effects of the long winter lay-off from the game which resulted in a goodly number of errors chalked up on both sides and plenty of runs; but with a few more practice games and under the belts the local boys will take on the best of them.

The game was featured with a parade of pitchers, both teams using three men on the mound, which was due to the short time the boys have had to get their arms in shape. Reg. Oufeld started in the box for Wainwright and had his offerings knocked for five runs in the first three innings. Sam Roberts then took over the pitching duties and in his four innings of pitching struck out eight men, which is pretty fair chucking in any company. Barney Buckle finished the game, pitching two innings and held the opposition to no runs.

The customers were treated to one home run in the fifth inning when Russell Gendertson pulled one out for the four bases bringing in Sam Roberts ahead of him.

Amendments of Act Effect Sch. Problems

Amendments to the School Act passed in the recent session of the legislature which are of great importance are contained in the following clauses.

They will allow the dissolution of school districts by order of the Minister of Education and their reformation into larger districts and the appointment of boards to take charge of the new districts thus formed until such time as these boards can be elected by the ratepayers, who will also allow the present unequal rates of taxation which are prevalent to be reorganized on an equal basis.

The legislative suggestions made by Lorne Proudford, M.L.A., during the budget debate, and permits the union of school districts in any one municipal district, or over a larger area with a uniform rate of taxation over all. It was passed through the house with little opposition, that being based upon the control of the school districts by an appointed board rather than an elected board. The opposition was withdrawn, however, in order to prevent delay in operation and allow the minister to appoint a temporary board.

Women's Institute Monthly Meeting

On May 14th, the members of the local W.I. met at the home of Mrs. Ray Green where 21 members and two visitors were in attendance.

During the business of the afternoon, Mesdames J. W. Stuart and H. Smart were delegated to attend the provincial convention of Women's Institutes which is to be held in Edmonton next week.

A vote of condolence was passed to one of the members, Miss Elsie Martin, upon the recent passing away of her brother in Edmonton.

Arrangements were concluded to hold a party for the members and invited friends in the Masonic hall on May 27th.

The following amendment to the foregoing resolution was introduced by Councillor Link, viz:

"That the resolution re tax arrears be tabled until the next regular meeting. On being put to the vote, the amendment was unanimously carried."

On motion, Council was regularly adjourned.

The date of the annual exhibition and stampede of the City of Calgary has been set for July 8-13.

Pal-Nite Brings Mystery Drama

While the settings and atmosphere of this mystery comedy are sophisticated the skilful mixture of comedy, color and thrills makes this picture shown on pal-nite May 28 and 29th a popular all-night attraction. Although the well-known stars Ricardo Cortez and Virginia Bruce compete for honors, Constance Collier as Aunt Melissa, a newcomer is the star of the performance.

The story centers around Sim Standvast, action of Park Avenue; Treema the movie queen with whom he is in love regardless of his Aunt Melissa to whom Treema is very much "persona non grata." Two murders complicate the plot and the guilty person is at last brought to book (after a thrilling jump from a lower clearing Treema and Sim from all suspicion. Aunt Melissa proved to be the shadow one in solving the crime. Naturally there is a happy ending to this picture which shows here for Tuesday and Wednesday next week.

A farewell party is being planned for tomorrow (Thursday) evening to honor Rev. Father McGee, who after a two-year stay in town leaves next week for his new parish at Irma.

Gilt Edge Council Sets Rates for Labor

Minutes of the meeting of the Council of the municipal district of Gilt Edge, No. 422 held on Tuesday, May 14th with all councillors present.

Moved by Coun. Sutherland—That minutes of last meeting be adopted as read.—Carried.

The Secretary reported re Henson deportation case, that department of immigration is still unwilling to proceed in the matter.

Moved by Coun. Sutherland—That petition from ratepayers of M.D. of Grizzly Bear, Merton and Gilt Edge for a roadway from 6-47-5 five miles east to Paradise Valley, that Secretary communicate with the various municipalities concerned and see if they concur in this petition.—Carried.

A report was received from committee on the Casper house that the Progress Lumber Co. agree to repair foundations.

Moved by Coun. Jones—That $10 monthly relief to Mrs. J. Church be now cut off, for Church being on full pension.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Traynor—That S. E. 12-48-6-4 be leased to Mr. A. E. Kitchen for the calendar years 1934, 1935, 1936, 1937, and 1938; 1934-35 at no rental, in order to control weeds; rental for 1936-38 to be one third of crop delivered in the elevator, this resolution to become effective should the department turn down Mr. Kitchen's offer to purchase.—Carried.

Dr. G. Maynes waited on Council re Bob Hare suffering from rheumatism, and asked that Council grant him a fee for removing tonsils and attendance; same not to exceed $35.

LOCAL NOTES

Added employees at the Gold Standard refinery include Messrs Ernest Mills, Wm. McBeth and E. Moore. The plant is certainly keeping busy these days.

Mr. F. E. Sine, president of the Atlas Lumber Company, and B. F. Sine, supt., visited the local yard last week. The former has just returned from a business trip to Florida and gave us a call.

A "shower" party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ballentine at Paschenfeld last week, when a large number of useful presents were presented to this popular young couple and a pleasant evening was spent by a goodly crowd.

The date has now been set for the production of the big mystery play "Spooks" by the Dramatic Club. This will be given on Thursday of next week—the 30th instant.

The Link garden property opposite the telephone office on Thirtieth avenue is being greatly improved this week by the planting of trees and shrubs, so as to make this a beauty spot.

Alberta Crop Report

Following is one of the most backward seasons in Alberta's history, seeding of wheat is how general over the province, fully three weeks later than in 1934. In the extreme south and south-western sections of the province, wheat seeding is from 25 to 50 per cent completed, while in the east-central and south central districts seeding has just become general. Throughout the north-central districts seeding has just become general. In the northern districts, with the advent of warmer weather, seeding has begun and will be well under way this week. Due to the lateness of the season, much of the seeding is going in without the usual careful preparation.

Cold weather, with frequent falls of heavy wet snow, and rain, interspersed with periods of high winds, characterized April and the first half of May, and it was not until the present week that seasonable spring weather arrived. Intermittent showers of rain are still interfering somewhat with farm operations.

Surface moisture conditions may fairly be stated to be the most satisfactory for some years, although reserve moisture in most of the province is not yet plentiful. Continuous precipitation during the spring months has, while delaying operations, created an optimistic feeling.

The extreme southern part of the province records precipitation about the average, particularly in the Medicine Hat area. In the area to the east of the Calgary-Macleod line there has been some soil drifting, but this has not yet been serious, and further rains have helped to minimize the menace. In the districts where there has been drought, conditions have prevailed for a number of years, moisture conditions are reported to be fairly satisfactory.

Held back by late spring conditions hopper hatching is not expected to commence for another two weeks. The extent of this menace depends entirely upon future weather conditions. Sudden warm weather would tend to bring out the hoppers in large numbers very quickly in the heavily infested areas, and farmers in these areas are urged to be prepared to deal with the situation. Generally speaking, the hopper menace is not expected to be as great as in the past three years.

The general tendency this year is to reduce wheat acreage and increase the acreage in coarse grains. In one or two districts, it is reported that the decrease of wheat acreage will be comparatively heavy, but the general decrease over the province is not expected to be great, although it is too early to make a definite estimate.

St. Thomas' Bazaar Proves Successful

Despite the adverse condition of the weather on Saturday afternoon last, the ladies of St. Thomas' church who staged their semi-annual bazaar on that day in the L.O.O.F. hall, had a visit from quite a number of the ladies to their fancy work and other stalls.

During the afternoon tea was served, too, which all aided in swelling the funds of the Women's Auxiliary of the church.

Newspapers Got 61 p.c. Of Cash

NEW YORK—Newspapers during 1934 received 61.8 per cent of $225,216,500 spent by 367 national advertisers during 1934, according to an analysis released by the Bureau of Advertising.

The report showed that magazines received 25 per cent of the total amount, while chain broadcasting received 13.2 per cent.

Compared with 1933, when the bureau analysis covered the appropriations of 551 advertisers spending $185,706,924, the current analysis showed both a greater number of national advertisers as well as a higher individual expenditure. Another proof that it pays to advertise.

Mr. Arthur Harden, who formerly resided in the Guthrie house north of the school has now moved his family to the Wittmann house on Sixth avenue east formerly occupied by H. Spavin.

Mr. J. Maloney of the Western Consolidated Oil has been in town the past week making arrangements for the pulling of some of the casing from the well and repairing the damage done by the recent fire on the company's property north of town.

Our town taxi is sure getting up-to-date by the installation of a first class radio!

Social Crediters Hold Constituency Conv.

Although there was not a big attendance at the constituency convention of the Social Credit group, at their gathering in the theatre last week, quite a contest was experienced to arrive at the names of those who would be the four nominees for the selection of one to run in the coming provincial elections.

After some twelve ballots had been taken, the following were named as the choice of the delegates who alone had voting power: Messrs F. E. Sine, Wainwright; J. Greenan, Gilt Edge; W. Hetherington, Auburnleed; and W. Masson, Irma; and one of these gentlemen will be later chosen to contest the seat for the Wainwright constituency.

Mrs. May Tondus has a visitor this week in the person of her sister from Bonnyville who plans to stay for the summer holidays.

Canadian Election In The Early Fall

MR. BENNETT'S POLICY OF ECONOMIC REFORM WILL BE AT STAKE

OTTAWA—The life of the present Parliament of Canada, elected in 1930, expires this summer. It is rare, in Canadian experience, for a Parliament to continue in existence much beyond four years, but the right exists and if the forthcoming election is held, as now seems probable, in late September or early October it will be separated by about five years and three months from the election that installed Mr. R. B. Bennett as Prime Minister in place of Mr. Mackenzie King, present leader of the Liberal Opposition.

Parliament met recently on the heels of a series of public addresses in which Mr. Bennett came out strongly for a programme of economic reform. "The old order," he said, "is gone. It will not return. Your prosperity demands corrections in the old system. The right time is coming when these changes have come." His programme, very brief, provides for regulation of industry, of the hours and conditions of labour, and pursued to its ultimate end Mr. Bennett claims would reduce unemployment by laying the causes and save Canada from the "dole."

With Parliament taken ill, and he had not returned to his place when adjournment was taken in late April to May 20, but he had made marked recovery and when he went to London it was his intention to lead the government on the resumption of the session, to carry his party through

FEDERAL NOMINEE HOLDS MEETING AT GILT EDGE

An enthusiastic Liberal meeting of about 200 was held at Gilt Edge municipal hall, in the interest of Mr. M. L. Forster, Federal Liberal candidate for the Battle River riding.

Mr. Forster, in his remarks, dealt extensively with the tariff policy of the Liberal party, and its effect upon trade and prices, both nationally and internationally.

He pointed out that the periods of depression such as we have experienced are nothing new in the history of the country. He severely criticized the policies of the present government at Ottawa and said the Liberal party had always proved real reformers. He pointed out that Mr. Bennett was no doubt greatly disturbed at the growing public sentiment against the Tory party and was trying to do something to stop the tide of public disfavor, hence the "real social reform programme" which Mr. Bennett had announced over the radio.

The Liberal party is anxious to see

Funeral Of Late Mr. J. G. Clark

Following the death of Mr. J. G. Clark, formerly of this district, at Trail, B.C., as reported in our last issue, the funeral took place in Calgary on Monday last week, interment being made in the family plot there, with Mr. George Clark, of town attending.

The late Mr. Clark who was a veteran of the Red Rebellion, was born and educated in Ottawa, and moved to Winnipeg just before the outbreak. He enlisted and saw much active service.

Called east by his father's death in 1909, Mr. Clark came to Wainwright where his stock carried off championships when exhibited at St. Louis world's fair. Moving west again he took up farming on a large scale near Irma, specializing in Shorthorns and Wyandales. A steer he presented to the University won a championship at Chicago.

For three years he lectured in animal husbandry at Vermilion and Claresholm agricultural schools, retiring eight years ago and moving to Trail where widow and daughter survive besides another daughter, Mrs. A. Harper of Irma, son John, Wainwright, and son Thomas in Ontario. Woodville Clark, Irma, is a brother.

While young, the situations avoid becoming too daring as an air of suspense which audiences will understand complicates matters for Bennett's principal supporters. The comedy value of a man in love with his own wife, but thinking that she is someone else is all intriguing. "Two song numbers," "Your kisses in the morning," and "Boulevard of Dreams," basis for the girl dance sequence, which Miss Bennett sings, supported by Russ Colombo and the racing Boswell Sisters, advance the romance.

100,000 Maps Issued by A.M.A.

During this season, the Alberta Bureau operated at branches of the Alberta Motor Association in Edmonton, Calgary and Lethbridge are expecting heavy demands for service.

At these offices, where courtesy is one of the by-words, every consideration is given to the requests of motorists desiring information. Experts who have made a careful study of routes are able to pick out the most convenient ones, so that motorists may travel one way and return by another never once covering the same ground unless there is a desire to see some sections twice during the trip.

From time to time, the motorist receives letters of commendation for their routing services.

Mileage, garages, hotels, and the official appointments of the A.M.A. are shown on these maps. Those seeking good hunting and fishing spots, the maps contain valuable information.

The maps are of particular value to visitors, of whom greatly increased numbers are expected to visit Alberta parks and other beautiful spots during the coming season. The maps of the campaign inaugurated by the Canadian Travel Bureau to meet the greater number of tourists, to meet the way directional maps will be of extreme assistance.

some reform measures introduced and put to work instead of talk; talked about, as for the past five years things at Ottawa have gone worse and worse.

The Liberal party, he said, must appeal to the public to see to it that some radical changes are made, because the Bennett new deal is a failure. We are taxed out of all proportion to ability to pay; interest charges are crippling our people and our country. The estimates contained no change; the budget had in it nothing new.

Mr. Peter Gilma, the Provincial Liberal candidate for Wainwright, spoke briefly on provincial issues.

The Hon. Charles Stewart, dealt with the Liberal platform; setting out clearly, what the party proposed to do, if returned to power this year. He dealt with the operation of a publicly owned Central Bank, unemployment, tariffs, trade and how each affected the people of this country.

Mr. W. S. Campbell, the Federal Liberal candidate for Wetaskiwin pointed out how Canada had been developed, from its beginning, for world trade. He also spoke on the adjustment of interest, principal, debts, taxes and the equilibrium of prices.

United Artists To Show Moulin Rouge

With Constance Bennett playing the lead role, and both singing and dancing practically all through the sequences, the patrons of the Elks will have a treat on Friday and Saturday next when the happy music romance "Moulin Rouge" will be on the bill.

Here's the plot. Helen wants a musical career. Douglas, her husband, wants her to be a home wife. A French girl (dub role played by Miss Bennett) is imported for the role as Helen and Doug split up. Years before, the two girls, very much resembling each other, play a small-time vaudeville as a sister act. It is easy for Helen to persuade the other girl to go to the movies. The girl is a very clever girl, and the expected developments ensue, both the lovers acclaiming her a great artist especially for her musical ability. Helen goes on to a triumph, finally revealing to LeMaire and Doug who she really is.

While young, the situations avoid becoming too daring as an air of suspense which audiences will understand complicates matters for Bennett's principal supporters. The comedy value of a man in love with his own wife, but thinking that she is someone else is all intriguing. "Two song numbers," "Your kisses in the morning," and "Boulevard of Dreams," basis for the girl dance sequence, which Miss Bennett sings, supported by Russ Colombo and the racing Boswell Sisters, advance the romance.

DISCUSSION . . . Everywhere

In the past three weeks I have talked with literally hundreds of the best-informed men in the country. They are the publishers and responsible editors of the nation's leading newspapers. Each of them told me the same story. From coast to coast, the everyday people are discussing the national political, economic and social affairs with a degree of freedom that has not been noticeable for more than two years.

"The panic is over," said one. "The blind fear that has paralyzed the nation has passed the willingness to follow anybody who promised to lead them out of trouble."

The American people are still in trouble, but they are discussing the way out with clearer eyes and a better understanding, not only of the causes of their troubles but of the validity of the various plans offered to alleviate them.

To my mind that is the most hopeful sign of the times. America is coming back to its own when its people begin to do their own political thinking.

POLITICS . . . the battleground

Anyone who wants to change conditions which affect any material number of people must approach his effort politically or he won't get to first base. That is the American method. If he has votes behind him he can, perhaps, accomplish the change he advocates; if he hasn't the votes his hands are tied.

That is why Upton Sinclair and Father Coughlin and Huey Long cut such an important figure in present day discussions of public affairs. Each of them has a considerable body of potential votes behind them. Upton Sinclair had more than 800,000 voters back of his EPIC scheme in California; nobody can guess how many Father Coughlin or Senator Long might control, if it came to a showdown.

The principal question raised in political discussions today is whether or not there will be a third party ticket in the field in 1936, led by one of the gentlemen just named or some other Radical. If such a third party is launched it will draw votes from among those who otherwise would naturally support Mr. Roosevelt. He will certainly be renominated, if he lives, but has he such a solid block of Democratic partisans behind him that he can win if the Radical fringe is trimmed off? Enough, for example, to offset the 131 million votes, which the elections of 1934 demonstrated, stick to the Republican party . . .

through thick and thin?

PARTIES . . . two or three
Until the present Administration in Washington, the main difference between the Republican and Democratic parties was that one was in the seat of power and the other was out. A man could be a good Republican and accept the Democratic platform of 1932, and vice versa. The vote that elected Mr. Roosevelt was not so much pro-Democratic as it was a vote for change.

The acts and policies of the Administration in the past two years have made a real difference between the two great parties. The Democrats, throwing their platform overboard, embarked on policies which sharply differentiate them from Republicans, thus putting the Republican party definitely on the Conservative side of the political fence.

The real political issue of 1936, therefore, seems likely to be between a distinctly Conservative party and a party which, if not definitely Radical, is at least tinged strongly with Radicalism. If the Republicans try to introduce Radical ideas, they will again be indistinguishable from the Democrats. If the Democrats swing too far toward Radicalism they will lose great blocks of their Conservative voters; but if they do not, they are threatened by a Radical third party movement.

DEFINITIONS . . . three classes

What, precisely, do we mean by such terms as Conservative, Liberal and Radical?

A Conservative is, I think, a person, who has become adjusted to his environment, whatever that may be, and who is able, therefore, to take a detached view of the world and its people. Such a person is opposed to hasty change and unproved experiments.

A Radical, on the other hand, is one who is finding trouble in fitting himself into the social picture, and wants to change the whole system, in the belief that his troubles and those of his fellows are due to faulty organization of society.

A liberal, in the true definition of the word, is one who is tolerant of all beliefs and of minorities and especially of the rights of the individual man. He would neither suppress those who disagree with him nor exalt unduly any class or clique. I know many Conservatives who are also Liberals; I cannot imagine a Radical being a Liberal.

OUTLOOK . . . real horse race

My belief is that there are more Conservatives among those who voted the Democratic ticket in 1932 than anybody imagines. I believe, also, that there is a much stronger element of Liberals in the irreducible minimum of 131 million Republicans than is generally thought.

I think that the ultimate aim of all political parties and groups is the same—to find ways to accomplish the greatest number of people. The only real differences of opinion concern, not the objectives, but the way of reaching them.

I think those differences of opinion as to ways and means are becoming more pronounced and being more freely expressed.

"It is differences of opinion that make horse races," said Mark Twain. It begins to look to me as if we would have a real horse race in 1936.

Hatching eggs shipped recently from Canada to Honolulu have proven so successful that further orders have been received from British Columbia dealers. According to latest advices, there is every indication that a substantial trade will be developed.

Rambling Round New York

Where it came from and why it ever got there is a mystery but through the last (let us hope) of New York's snow storms, snow shovellers in Harlem found an eight foot alligator in a manhole. They dragged him out mumbled by the cold. But then he went into action, which called for a bit of unusual use of snow shovelling tools. A sanitation truck finally dragged him away.

Jack Dempsey has a contract for four hours a day in a restaurant that bears his name. I wonder how many non-worshipers' hands he shakes each of those four hours?

The Metropolitan's opera season is over. Gatti Casazza is no longer the director. The question of the popularity of the next season, backed by the Juillard Foundation will not be answered for months. Society's opera has languished, while popular priced opera at the Hippodrome has flourished with many performances with "standing room only"—the SRO sign hung out.

CANADIAN GARDEN SERVICE

WINDOW BOX

A brown or green stained window box overflowing with gaily blooming flowers is within the range of almost every person. Here lack of ground space does not matter. Even the loftiest apartment dweller is able to satisfy a gardening ambition. Success is easily obtained provided only two or three points are kept in mind. This sort of gardening is highly intensive with many more plants to the square foot than would be grown under ordinary conditions. This means that very rich soil should be used and in addition a fairly frequent application of chemical fertilizer during the season. The box must be of fair depth, at least seven inches of soil being available. The third point is watering. Being exposed on all sides to drying winds, a thorough soaking once a day is advised.

CONSTRUCTION AND PLANTS

The window box should be as long as the window and should be supported and arranged so that the top of it is almost flush with the window sill. Otherwise, the foliage of the plants will soon fill up most of the window. There must be holes in the bottom to provide drainage, and a layer of gravel, cinders, broken crockery or similar material for the same purpose. If one can secure a supply of well-rotted manure put this in next, and finish with a top layer of rich soil. If there is no manure, use a fairly heavy application of good garden fertilizer and repeat every month. The box, which should be at least seven inches deep and from eight to ten inches wide at the top, should be filled to within half an inch of the top. Along the front trailing Nasturtiums, German Ivy, Lobelia, Alyssum, and similar plants are put in, with Petunias, Ageratums, Begonias, Ferns, Geraniums and any other plants especially recommended for this purpose farther back. Shelter from the sun for a day or two should be provided until the plants get established. The same treatment and planting materials will be used with hanging pots.

GROW QUICKLY

Tender vegetables are those which have been grown quickly. Especially with such things as radish, carrots and beets, is slow growth disastrous as the roots become woody and filled with objectionable fibres. But this rule also applies to those things used for salads. On this account experts advise pushing growth with frequent cultivation, which in addition to checking weeds also conserves moisture. Cultivation alone will often keep the vegetables going through a dry spell but of course a few pails of water or an hour of two with the hose at this time, will lend further aid. Where the supply of water is not as convenient as it might be, it is a good plan, in laying out the garden, to plant those things most in need of extra moisture, such as radish, lettuce and celery, closest to the pump. Fertilizer, is another way of hurrying growth and therefore assuring vegetables of the highest quality.

CULTIVATION

A constantly cultivated garden, will seldom be affected by drought. This stirring of the top soil prevents evaporation of moisture and it also keeps down those robbers of plant food and water, weeds. Especially during the early part of the season is cultivation necessary and more particularly after each shower. With some of the many hand, horse or tractor drawn garden cultivators on the market, this task is done quickly and without old time back-ache.

PERENNIALS FROM SEED

Most perennials may be grown from seed. Early in June is the best time to get started. Most of these should be started in a special nursery bed, except, perhaps such things as Oriental poppies which are rather difficult to transplant and should be sown where wanted permanently. Seed should be secured from a reliable firm. With perennials more than other flowers seed is very important, as there is liable to be a good deal of mixing and old seed with most of the flowers is absolutely no good. Prepare a fine bed in some portion of the garden where there is good drainage and preferably a little shade in the middle of the day. The seed is sown in rows about three or four inches apart. Keep the ground free of weeds, well cultivated, and until the germination, water with a fine spray every morning. Thin out plants and provide a light protection of leaves or straw the first winter. Next spring transplant to permanent quarters.

OUR POSITION RE SOCIAL CREDIT

As usual on the eve of a general election any reference to public affairs in a local paper is made an excuse to boycott the paper if it does not boost pet theories, says the Athabasca Echo.

Now, we have too much journalistic experience to attempt to placate all political factions. The Star's independence does not mean sitting on the fence nor passive neutrality when vital principles are at stake. In what we say we have only true patriotic motives for the good of the many.

We have had access to the whole Douglas dossier and have listened for hours to prophet Aberhart. We have also carefully read the latest scheme that has been offered to the Alberta Government by the Rev. J. Crawford-Frost as well as the Townsend and Hornby plans.

They all appear to be quick nostrums, based on an Utopian dream. We have always been in the van of progress and naturally if we saw any good in Social Credit we would have boosted it. A correspondent takes us to task for what we have said and at the same time doubts it can work.

We would have published his strictures if he had not condemned capitalism and the parties who have done so much in the way of progress. It is cheap clap-trap to rave against capitalism, he only world-wide system that has made universal trade and commerce possible.

Because of the mapping and motive for individual invention and endeavor. Because rascals of finance have misused it, is no reason to abuse it. As well blame the fire when you burn your finger.

In all Aberhart's propaganda no trace of a plan can be found and if he tried to put his theory to work it would isolate Alberta from the rest of the world and breed a nation of paupers.

We are 100 per cent for reform along sane lines but, we firmly believe that Social Credit will be the worst form of political lunacy in its present shape.

COMPARING BUSINESS

Business can be compared to a flowering shrub. Both must have proper nourishment to survive and flourish.

The shrub needs plenty of moisture and some fertilizer, while a business, any kind of business—needs the same treatment. That is, newspaper advertising for the necessary moisture to insure growth, and a general house cleaning in the way of new merchandise, new methods, sometimes new personnel as the proper fertilizer.

Advertising will always pay, providing the advertiser is as efficient and his place of business as attractive as the advertising itself. Truth in advertising—service in merchandising.

Business can be compared to a flowering shrub. Both must have proper nourishment to survive and flourish.

For cancellation, but nothing said about the fact that all cheques must be redeemed before they are cancelled. If anybody starts the cheque issuing business before arranging for redeeming them, they are asked away pronto.

What man describes is not like the circulation of blood, which must have value in the first place and each succeeding value added at each turn-over to keep up its life-giving force. What he describes as the flow of credit can only be likened to perpetual motion, which was discovered (according to Scandinavian Mythology) but it was likely to upset the system, so the capitalists bought it and destroyed the invention.

It used to be rather entertaining to listen in on Herr Aberhart's prophecies about things in the world to come. He is good when he sticks to something where you can not check up on him until it is too late for an argument. When it comes to his evangelistic economics he is a world beater. Even W. Howson's follow-up sounds rational in comparison.

If this idea of printing unredeemable had never been tried before there would be an excuse for the naive of enthusiasm it has created. But it is as old as the hills and as slippery as the mountains. But why argue or try to corner them up; one says one thing, and two say two other things.

But the fact remains that the natural resources of Alberta are in our hands, our river banks, and our coal banks, and no matter how many fountain pens and State Credit Houses are created, it will still take some scratching to get that out—B. C.

WHY LOOK BACKWARD

The Editor.
Dear Sir—In last week's Star you had a letter from "Imperialist" which is in line with most of the stuff put out by those opposing Social Credit. I am sure, anyone, after reading it must have been impressed by its statements, "looking back" is often salutary, also all his theory is present history; why look backwards. The financial situation of today is as backward as "Imperialist" could wish for. It is forward we have to look and see where we are going.

But the fact remains that the natural resources of Alberta are in our hands, our river banks, and our coal banks, and no matter how many fountain pens and State Credit Houses are created, it will still take some scratching to get that out—B. C.

AMONG THE OLD-TIMERS

"REMINISCERS OF OTHER DAYS"

20 YEARS AGO

Following an operation in a city hospital last week Mr. W. Rancor, an old and respected resident of Wainwright passed away.

Lieut. C. L. Hudson, member of the Alberta Legislature recently enlisted in the Great War and is now one of the 49th Battalion.

Mr. F. W. Fish acquired the business formerly controlled by Mr. R. E. Henry and is now established in this concern which in the future will be known as the Wainwright Sheet Metal Works.

A sample of wheat that had attained a growth of 10 inches in length already was brought in to the Star office by Mr. J. A. Martin a well known farmer of this district.

War brevities on Monday last reported German troops passing down the valley of the river Adige in the direction of Verona, North Italy. Heavy fighting is still going on in the west and the Balkan States are still undecided as to whether they will take a part.

SLIGO

On Sunday last, the local baseball team played a game with Mascot. It was a good game and lots of opposition in the cheering. The score was 6-2 in favor of the Gooseberries.

Mr. Bainbridge of Edgerton was visiting in the Sligo district last week.

The committees appointed by the Sunnyside U.F.W.A. and Junior U.F.A. met at Mrs. Burnell's home last Wednesday to make out the handicraft list for the Junior U.F.A. this year.

The Mother's Service was followed at the Rosedale United church on Sunday instead of Sunday School.

Mr. Vernon Guthrie and Mrs. John Guthrie, jr., visited at the Guthrie home on Sunday.

GREENSHIELDS

Miss Elizabeth Baker, who is returning to her home at Kitchener, Ontario, after spending the winter in California, is spending a short visit with her aunt, Mrs. George Smith.

Mr. Good visited the teacher and pupils at House Lake last week to make his annual inspection.

Miss M. Spence spent the week end in Greenshields.

At the regular meeting of the ladies' Aid last Wednesday at Mrs. T. Daniels'. There were eleven members and one visitor present. The next meeting is to be at the home of Mrs. W. White.

The C.N.R. gravel crew are here grading the track.

The young people are now meeting every Monday night to play softball.

Miss Elsie Hayward is visiting Mrs. C. Morriette.

Mr. Sillers, superintendent of the Pool elevator and Mr. Quinn of Calgary head office visited the local agent on Monday.

Mrs. Philip Rajotte and baby son spent last week in town visiting her parents.

Mr. J. H. Mills delivered the beef steer last week and this week it is Mr. A. Smith's turn.

TRAFALGAR

After completing a course at the technical school in Calgary, Mr. Frank Baker is expected home this week end.

Messrs. Geo. Murray and R. B. Reid were trippers to the city last week.

Mr. R. Haire who is suffering from rheumatic fever is now a patient in the Wainwright hospital.

Messrs. J. Chynoweth and N. Cooper having been called to battle for on account of the illness of Mrs. Haireman, returned last week. Mrs. Chynoweth expects to remain for a time.

Mr. Lorne Good, inspector of schools, paid an official visit to Trafalgar school on Friday.

EDGERTON

On Friday next, May 24th, a tonal clinic is to be held at the office of Dr. T. Moore in Edgerton, when the doctor will have the assistance of Dr. G. Maynes of Wainwright in this work.

The climate of Egypt is hot; nevertheless Canada has secured a substantial part in the export of raw and prepared fur skins to the land of the Pharaohs.

15 YEARS AGO

Another new Ford arrived in town last week and the proud possessor of this marvellous looking model is Mr. E. L. Cork.

Mrs. A. G. Smith has had as her guest at Park for a few days Dr. W. S. Osborne of the Chautauqua.

A book which is being highly spoken of and which is one of the season's best sellers "Virtue's Reward" was written by Rev. D. W. Pomeroy, who at one time was a resident of Edgerton and from whom it is known by many of this district.

Car Inspector J. Sutherland and Mr. T. Lismore were badly burned at the round house when the torch which they were using became ignited with a can of oil which had accidentally been knocked over.

On Friday last some 40 young people of this district enjoyed themselves at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Lewis of Greenshields in the celebration of little Miss Beth's birthday.

Mr. R. A. McKay has been entertaining his mother and father who motored from Hardisty for a short stay.

HOPE VALLEY

Quite a number attended the Social Credit Convention in Wainwright on Thursday evening from this district and we are quite proud to hear that Mr. J. Granaghan from the Rosedale group was chosen as a delegate. We wish his the best of luck.

Seeding is progressing wonderfully in this community. Most of the farmers are through with wheat and have started on the oats.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Sewell visited Mr. and Mrs. John Moore on Sunday.

GREEN DUCKS ARE MONEY MAKERS

Growing green ducks is a sideline of the farm which returns handsome profits for the money invested. Experimental work at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, shows that ducklings of the Pekin breed averaged six pounds each in ten weeks, and were reared to that stage on an average of three and one-half pounds of feed per pound of duckling.

Green ducklings find a ready sale at prices ranging from 20 cents a pound upward, and net a handsome profit for the grower. Ducklings of the Pekin breed made at least one-half a pound heavier gains than those of other breeds.

The Pekin is the most desirable breed when ducklings are wanted to mature early as green ducks. They are good feeders and rapid growers, and respond to special methods of feeding.

Frequent feeding promotes rapid growth. Ducklings should be fed six times daily from the start until they are about 18 to 20 days old, and five times daily during the remainder of the growing and fattening period until they are ready for market.

The feed used for growing ducklings at the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, is equal parts of bran, shorts and cornmeal with about ten per cent beetmeal added. A little charcoal (about one per cent) is also recommended. This mash should be moistened with water, and fed in a sticky sloppy. Add only sufficient water to make the mash stick together. Sprinkle coarse sand over the mash before feeding. The sand serves as a grit and aids in the process of digestion. Feed only what the ducklings will eat up clean at each feeding.

The feeding of green feed after the fourth or fifth day will help to reduce the cost of feed and assist in keeping the ducklings healthy during the forcing period. Freshly cut clover or alfalfa which has been chopped up into small pieces, makes excellent green feed. Mix only a small amount of this finely chopped green feed with the mash at first, and gradually increase the amount until about one week later the green feed will make up twenty per cent of the mash.

When the ducklings are about six weeks old the green feed should be gradually eliminated and at the commencement of the seventh week the mash should be changed to one possessing more fattening properties. The fattening mash used at Ottawa is 50 pounds cornmeal, 35 pounds shorts, and 15 pounds beetmeal, with a sprinkling of coarse sand.

By the time the ducklings are ten weeks old they should be in excellent flesh, and have developed their first coat of body feathers. This is the right time to market them. If they are kept longer they will change their feathers, and the rate of growth will decrease, thus increasing cost and reducing profit.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Set your alarm clock to notify you when the bathing period is complete. You may then continue your work in the other part of the house without worry.

If a few slices of bacon are placed in the bottom of the pan in which a meat loaf is baked, it will give it a delicious flavor.

A simple Russian dressing is made by adding two tablespoons of chili sauce and two tablespoons of finely chopped green peppers to one cup of mayonnaise.

Purchase seldom-used spices in small packages, as it is more economical, since spices lose some of their flavor when exposed to the air.

Skins may be more easily removed from potatoes if a narrow strip around potato is peeled off before putting potatoes in to bake.

To make frosting adhere to a cake dust a little flour over the top of the cake and you will have no difficulty in making the frosting stick.

When serving lettuce, be sure that no water is on the leaves when French dressing is added. The water will spoil the dressing and the oil will not adhere to the lettuce. Do not put dressing on lettuce until it is to be served.

Footstools placed under the table will prove a source of great comfort at meal times.

Break crisp cooked bacon left over after breakfast into potato soup. It improves the flavor.

"GREEN LIGHT" by Lloyd C. Douglas

Where are you in today's world? Are you one of the thousands groping for fresh courage and deeper self understanding to meet the problems and adventures presented by modern living? If so—and who of us is not?—then here is a story written expressly for you—a story of today's needs as great in its humanity and as far-reaching in its message as the author's sensational success "Magnificent Obsession" and certainly another novel destined to take its place among those few stories that have power to change men's lives. Ready in March.

When an author has written two successful novels and then after a

DE NINETY AND NINE

"For ill brack sheep don stray away. Don los in de win' and de rain. An' de Shepherd he say, 'O hie! Go on! My sheep again!'

But de ducklings are about six weeks old the green feed should be gradually eliminated and at the commencement of the seventh week the mash should be changed to one possessing more fattening properties. The fattening mash used at Ottawa is 50 pounds cornmeal, 35 pounds shorts, and 15 pounds beetmeal, with a sprinkling of coarse sand.

By the time the ducklings are ten weeks old they should be in excellent flesh, and have developed their first coat of body feathers. This is the right time to market them. If they are kept longer they will change their feathers, and the rate of growth will decrease, thus increasing cost and reducing profit.

Moved by Coun. Sutherland — That councilors receive $25 each on account for supervision of roads. — Carried.

Moved by Coun. Jones — That meeting adjourn; next meeting to be held on 11th day of June 1935. — Carried.

Growing green ducks is a sideline of the farm which returns handsome profits for the money invested. Experimental work at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, shows that ducklings of the Pekin breed averaged six pounds each in ten weeks, and were reared to that stage on an average of three and one-half pounds of feed per pound of duckling.

Green ducklings find a ready sale at prices ranging from 20 cents a pound upward, and net a handsome profit for the grower. Ducklings of the Pekin breed made at least one-half a pound heavier gains than those of other breeds.

The Pekin is the most desirable breed when ducklings are wanted to mature early as green ducks. They are good feeders and rapid growers, and respond to special methods of feeding.

Frequent feeding promotes rapid growth. Ducklings should be fed six times daily from the start until they are about 18 to 20 days old, and five times daily during the remainder of the growing and fattening period until they are ready for market.

The feed used for growing ducklings at the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, is equal parts of bran, shorts and cornmeal with about ten per cent beetmeal added. A little charcoal (about one per cent) is also recommended. This mash should be moistened with water, and fed in a sticky sloppy. Add only sufficient water to make the mash stick together. Sprinkle coarse sand over the mash before feeding. The sand serves as a grit and aids in the process of digestion. Feed only what the ducklings will eat up clean at each feeding.

The feeding of green feed after the fourth or fifth day will help to reduce the cost of feed and assist in keeping the ducklings healthy during the forcing period. Freshly cut clover or alfalfa which has been chopped up into small pieces, makes excellent green feed. Mix only a small amount of this finely chopped green feed with the mash at first, and gradually increase the amount until about one week later the green feed will make up twenty per cent of the mash.

When the ducklings are about six weeks old the green feed should be gradually eliminated and at the commencement of the seventh week the mash should be changed to one possessing more fattening properties. The fattening mash used at Ottawa is 50 pounds cornmeal, 35 pounds shorts, and 15 pounds beetmeal, with a sprinkling of coarse sand.

time produced a third, the discriminating reader is apt to open the new book with some misgivings it may be just another "pot boiler" — the third one sometimes is.

Lloyd Douglas gave us "Magnificent Obsession" and "Forgive Us Our Treadings" after both of which many thousands of readers expressed sincere approval. He had awakened their interest, compelled their attention, and somehow touched their hearts.

In the book, "Green Light," Douglas has not let his reading public down, the very first sentence of the story forecasts that.

The characters as they appear one by one are real men and women, just the sort of folk one would like to know and one does get to know them really. There is a noted divine, a famous surgeon, two of them a lawyer, a poor rich girl or two, and their several associates.

"Green Light" is a love story told in fine literary style, in which frustration, disillusion and disappointment play their part, and lend a present day significance to the tale. The Dean's wise counsel has a steady influence. The story closes just on the right note. Altogether this is a wholesome, stimulating book, and in every respect a credit to its Canadian publisher. 6,000 of its 10,000 words ran as a serial in Cosmopolitan last winter.

SLUMBERING GOLD

By Aubrey Boyd

SYNOPSIS—Speed Malone, hardened gambler, and Ed Maitland, son of a seafaring New England family, were partners in the Yukon Gold Rush of '97. They met on the trip north in a crowd that included Frengy, the fisherman, Lucky Rose, the beautiful girl who took a fancy to Maitland, Fallon, leader of the miners, who resented Rose's interest in Maitland; Brent, old-time prospector; Garnet, who gave Maitland and Speed his outfit when he quit the trail, and Pete and his drunken partner, Owens, who was drowned after a brawl. Pete turned out to be a girl in disguise. Speed killed a man at Skagway—a chest manager of a shell game—and months later was arrested and put in jail for his murder. He got out, but while he was waiting for Lefty, who offered to help him, to get back the small he had been carrying for the mountains at Bennett where Drew and Calhoun were stationed—he was recaptured by his enemy Fallon. But Maitland and Pete rescued him as Fallon was about to lynch him. They made for their camp at Bennett—Pete and Maitland with the horses, by one route, Speed by another with the dogs, led by Rusty, who had come to them in a blizzard. Now go on with the story.

"What did you hear, Bud?" Speed spoke low to prevent his voice from carrying to Pete, indoors. It was before dawn of the second morning. Maitland told him. "Do you reckon we're both hearin' things?" Speed muttered. "It listened to me more like a louder sound way off. An echo of gunfire. Or else from trees snapping in the chasm." Motionless, they listened again. The silence of the shadowed chasm mocked them.

Speed stirred abruptly. "You stay here, Bud, and watch with Pete. I may be gone awhile, but keep that Cliff covered with the rifle. I'll call you when I come back round it."

Speed's reconnaissance took him over a wider range than he had expected. When he paused, halfway down a lofty slope, it was to survey a long and unobstructed view of white headlands, shining in the dawn. In the center of one of the ravines, about two miles away, a pair of dark moving specks came into view. They were men; one of them carried what might be a rifle.

Very slowly, so as not to betray himself by a quick movement, he sank in the snow. The advantage of view was in his favor, since he looked down on them from above.

They were too far to be recognized as anything but men, but the image of Fallon had somehow leaped into his mind's eye at the first dim glimpse of them.

He lay along the base of a boulder, raising his head just high enough to bring the figures into view. He fired the gun once, at random in their direction, and immediately covered it to prevent even a wisp of smoke from showing.

They kept moving for an interval before the sound reached their ears. They stopped, as he had expected. But instead of looking up in his general direction, they turned to stare at the spot where he had fired.

Yet, in spite of the advantage this gave them for observation, some vague and nameless instinct made him sink back out of sight between the boulder and snow trough. This wary sense did not leave him; but after lying hidden some thirty seconds, he looked over the rim again. Strange to say the two figures had vanished.

Slowly he rose into clear view by the boulder, to tempt them to declare themselves with a bullet.

The shot that did come was an utter and confounding surprise. The roar of it burst in his ears from directly behind him. He dropped back instantly into his shelter. The bullet had flattened against the inner side of the boulder right next to his arm, in the same flash of time as the gun's roar. The marksmen was not more than a hundred yards away.

Nothing showed behind him, either. He waited for a gun muzzle to show; for some tremor, however slight, in the snow above. Why didn't the fellow shoot? His ear close to the snow, detected the crunch of running feet receding from him.

He jumped up and ran to the near-by point from which the shot had seemed to come. There he found a hollow in the snow where the super-helical had been, and the marks of his feet leading up from below to this depression, and running away from it. The fugitive was headed for the cabin and had left a moccasin track!

There was a spreading dark pink stain in the snow where he had hid down, and a blood trail all along his course!

A wild scramble along canyon brinks and ledges brought him to the head of the bloodline gulch, and the absence of a track trace in it assured him that he had arrived in time.

Maitland stood waiting with the cabin and with Pete close by. He motioned them to back in close to the cliff, in silence. They had caught the alarm of the shot, but had no notion of what was about to happen.

After a still wait, a voice spoke abruptly from around the cliff and close at hand—a husky, broken voice. "Don't shoot. It's mid-week. 'It's your game. I'm out of shells."

Along the cliff wall and into view covered by Speed's guns, a fur-clad and moccasined figure slipped its way twisted with agony. Maitland recognized at a glance the man who had held them up at their winter camp.

He held a revolver in his right hand. The other clutched at his side, and dripped blood. When he raised his head and looked at them, his eyes changed strangely from the look of a fighting animal brought to bay, to an expression of wild astonishment.

"Pete!" he murmured, almost under his breath. "How did they find this?"

"They found your lead dog on the lakes," said Pete. "It brought us here."

The deepening wonder in his face was a thing to see. "The dog?" he muttered huskily. There was a choking in his throat like a chuckle—became a desperate, blood-chilling, mortally exhausted laugh. "We've won now, kid!" he chorused in a hard elation. "Beat the game with a damn Siwash."

When they would have caught him, he waved them on again. Get this—Pete," he mumbled thickly. "Somethin' else—I've got to tell you, kid. And I will. Bud—give me time—"

He lost his voice and found it by sheer force of will—"I saw it"—just now. Two men—in the gulch. In bright snow—"His voice ebbed from him. His discolored and racked face turned gray with a deadly pallor of weakness and stupefaction at the failure of his tongue and his brain to answer his will. "The gold!"

With an agonized, astonished curse at his defeat, he slumped, held rigid an instant against the wall, and then with a slow, lurching slide, sank down.

Speed, who had taken a step to break his fall, caught him, and leaned over the still body.

"He told the truth about his last shell," Speed mused aloud. "He was trying to reach the cabin and his shells for a last stand. But he saw our marks in the gulch. Who did he think I was at first? And where did he get the wound?"

"The two men in the gulch he spoke of," said Maitland.

"It's what I was wonderin', I saw them too. About four miles off from here. He must have dodged 'em. But they'll pick up his blood trail. In half an hour from now they'll—"

Here Speed unaccountably broke off short, spun about with a gun drawn, and in a flash had leaped round the narrow cliff ledge out of Maitland's sight.

"Hands up!" he shouted. "Or I blast you into the canyon. Throw that gun down!"

A man with his arms raised came around the cliff ledge by which Dalton had approached so short a time before. Maitland was too confounded to utter a sound. He wore the uniform of the mounted police.

There are no braver men than the Canadian Northwest Mounted, but they are neither immortal nor invulnerable to the menace of two 45 six shooters at blank range.

Speed emptied the mountie's holster and kicked the gun behind him into the snow.

"This only makes it worse for you," said Speed. "I demand that you and your partner surrender to arrest."

Here was just the vicious turn of fate that Speed had feared, with an extra twist to make it worse. After evading the suspicion of Calhoun, who had mistaken Dalton for a Siwash, were they now, by a climax of irony, to be charged with the murder of Dalton himself?

"This looks compromisin', I'll concede," he said. "But you boys are on the wrong track. While you're stakin' us the real game is likely beatin' to cover. There's two more men in these mountains, and they're worth trailin'."

"Where did you see them?" the officer asked without belief. Speed pointed his gun. "Four miles that way."

"You saw me and an officer who trailed with me, perhaps, though we didn't come from that direction. You've got our distance and bearings twisted. If you have a hope of setting us on a false trail, you can drop it. The game's up for both of you. Should you refuse to return our guns and have heard the warrant, you'll be hunted down to a finish."

Speed picked up the police revolver, emptied them and threw them into the chasm. It's a difference of opinion that makes a gambler," he said. "Get me two lengths of rawhide, Bud."

The request brought Maitland out of a trance. Don't do it Speed," he said quickly. "Let the law straighten this out. Investigations will clear us of what they suspect."

"You've got delusions about the law, Bud. I can't argue with you. I ain't got no words but a low-down gambler's lingo and it just don't fit with what I'm tryin' to show. But I've got a hunch, and I'm askin' you now, if ever you trusted a partner's word, to take mine when I say you ain't fixed to deal with the law. Later maybe—not now."

Maitland was moved by the appeal, but not by its logic. His eyes of steel when he spoke. "We've reached that junction, Speed, you once talked of. God knows I'll never have a truer partner. You know that if this charge were made against you alone, and there was no other way out than the one you say, I'd to escape by using force against the police isn't just a crime that would outlaw us for life; it's a needless crime. We'd be giving them the real case against us that they haven't got. That isn't all. We couldn't take Pete over that route, and I can't leave here to face this alone."

It's a would have spoken, but Speed's branding look at her checked the words. "How do you figure it?" "I don't know," said Pete, unhappily. "I feel that Bud's right though when he says you'd give the law a case." "You're an ornery young pair of cubs," Speed muttered. "Reckon you can't help it, come from where you do. Now it's the same junction turned backwards, and I can be just as damned ornery."

He pressed back the gun hammers, tensely watched by the police officer who had followed his argument with a fatal interest. Speed's eyes, however, strayed to a long pendant spruce cone on a tree near the ledge.

Without aiming, he fired. The cone fell, clipped from the branch, and before it reached the snow, four quick bullets had broken it in fragments. The remaining shells blazed at these pieces as they spun down the slope.

The outlaw waited, listening, till the last echo died out of the canyon. Slowly then, he looked at the guns, and rubbed a spot from one of the clean blue barrels. They were still smoking when he handed them to the police officer.

"Well, go ahead and read your warrant about our supposed shootin' of this man," said Speed, indicating Dalton's body.

"We have a warrant for your arrest," said the mountie, "but not for killing that man. Since you've surrendered, I want you to understand that we don't railroad men, or even arrest them, on merely presumptive charges. We had a brush with this fugitive—" nodding toward Dalton, "down the creek. It's more than possible he was wounded by one of our guns. The inquest will show. My warrant is to arrest you and your partner for the murder of a Siwash on Lake Leboan, on or about the 20th of last November. The native's body was disposed of through a hole in the ice and has been recovered since the thaw."

Speed's eyes sought those of his partner and Pete, who looked dumfounded.

"Your own warrant?" he demanded.

"Mine would be sufficient. This one happens to be signed by Calhoun of the mounted police."

"Well, I'm a son of a—!" Speed mumbled to the hollow chasm with a note of doom.

At the same moment, a clatter in the jackpine gulch swung their attention to that quarter. In these echoing surprises they had completely forgotten Rusty. Now a slinking wolfish head nosed round the cliff and covered back at sight of the fallen body. From behind the cliff, the astute, excited, harshly familiar voice of Corporal Calhoun twanged like an untuned banjo: "Get 'his malmaluke. Burke. It's the 'old' that gave us the blood trail. The Siwash's lead dog!"

It did not take the mounties long to get things in shape for the trip down to headquarters. Pete was delegated to serve breakfast while the officers disposed of Dalton's body in a crude grave near the mountain hideout. At last they started, Speed, closely guarded, gave them no cause for concern. He was meeting the law unafraid.

FAVORITE SPRING DISHES

Most of us can afford to forget that distasteful—and frequently faddish—command, "Don't eat this and don't eat that." If we will merely use a little common sense.

"Don't overload your stomach with heavy foods. See that your meat, fish and bread are balanced with milk, vegetables and fruits. Eat a little less as the weather gets warmer."

Really, if we follow these rules we need not worry ourselves to death about calories, over-weight and under-nourishment.

During cold weather we need foods which are sources of quick energy to keep the body warm, but as spring advances we may reduce the quantity of these foods. The craving for more food may be appeased by eating more liberally of light dishes. Luscious fingerbread and milk for lunch; beautiful salads; plenty of greens; these will help you to prevent spring fever. Try the following recipes this spring—substituting these delicious dairies for some of your heavier foods.

Spring Gingerbread

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
1/2 teaspoon soda
2 teaspoons ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon salt
One-third cup butter or other shortening
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg, unbeaten
Two-thirds cup molasses
1/2 cup sour milk or buttermilk

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, soda, spices, and salt, and mix together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat well; then molasses. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Bake in greased pan 8x8x2 inches in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 50 minutes, or until done. Serve plain, or cut in squares and top with molasses whipped cream, made by folding 2 tablespoons molasses into 1/2 cup cream, whipped.

1 package lemon-flavored gelatin
1 pint warm water
1 pimento, cut in strips
2 hard cooked eggs, coarsely cut
1 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup third chopped olives
1/2 teaspoon chopped chives, or
1 teaspoon scraped onion
Dash of cayenne

Dissolve gelatin in warm water. Chill until slightly thickened. Arrange pimento strips in individual molds. Combine remaining ingredients; fold at once into slightly thickened gelatin. Turn into individual molds and chill until firm. Unmold.

Baked Fish

6 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 egg yolks
2 cups cooked fish
3 cup milk
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten
1/2 cup bread crumbs, buttered

Combine quick-cooking tapioca, salt, pepper, egg yolks, fish and milk in top of double boiler and stir enough to break egg yolks. Place over rapidly boiling water, bring to scalding point (allow 5 to 7 minutes) and cook 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Remove from boiling water. Fold a small amount into egg whites. Add to remaining tapioca mixture and blend. Turn into greased baking dish and cover with crumbs. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 minutes, or until brown. Serve hot. Serves six.

Ham Casserole

1/2 pound ham, cut 1 inch thick
1/2 small green pepper, finely chopped
Three-eighths cup grape-nuts
1 large sweet potato, pared
1 cup milk or soup stock
1/2 teaspoon salt (if milk is used)

Cut ham into 4 pieces for serving and place in greased baking dish. Sprinkle with pepper and half of grape nuts. Cut potato into slices one-half inch thick. Place potato slices on top of ham. Sprinkle with remaining grape-nuts. Pour over all soup stock or salted milk. Bake, covered, in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 20 minutes. Uncover, increase heat slightly (375 degrees F.) and bake 40 minutes more. Serves four.

MAY FOR MAYONNAISE

May and June are banner months in homes where early green vegetables are appreciated. Salads that are not available during cold weather may again be enjoyed. Heavy dishes give place to lighter ones so that spring fever may be avoided. Here are two particularly delicious recipes for this time of year.

Appetizer Mayonnaise

Two-thirds Hellmann's or Best Foods French Dressing
One-third cup Hellmann's or Best Foods Real Mayonnaise
Clove of garlic
Rub bowl in which dressings is to be mixed with outside of clove of garlic. Slowly add French dressing to real mayonnaise, beating constantly.

Makes one cup mayonnaise
Fresh Strawberry Cream Mayonnaise (For fruit salads)
1/2 cup Hellmann's or Best Foods Mayonnaise
1/2 cup fresh strawberries, hulled and crushed
2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/4 cup cream, whipped

To real mayonnaise add strawberries, sugar and lemon juice, and stir into whipped cream. Makes 3/4 cup mayonnaise.

STRAWBERRIES MEAN SHORTCAKE

"Ma's having strawberry shortcake for dinner boys, so pile in and get this hay moved away. The sooner we're done, the sooner we start eating."

And fifty million farmers can't be wrong. Having time is strawberry time. Strawberry time is shortcake time. The modern woman wishing a strictly early delicacy should by all means make at least one old-fashioned strawberry shortcake while the berries either wild or cultivated—are in season.

Such a cake is easy to prepare, decidedly inexpensive—and oh, how luscious. And once tried, it becomes a regular desert—so long as strawberries can be obtained.

Old Fashioned Strawberry Shortcake
2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt

1 package lemon-flavored gelatin
1 pint warm water
1 pimento, cut in strips
2 hard cooked eggs, coarsely cut
1 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup third chopped olives
1/2 teaspoon chopped chives, or
1 teaspoon scraped onion
Dash of cayenne

Dissolve gelatin in warm water. Chill until slightly thickened. Arrange pimento strips in individual molds. Combine remaining ingredients; fold at once into slightly thickened gelatin. Turn into individual molds and chill until firm. Unmold.

Information Please!

Human beings are markets. Every man, woman and child is a daily wantor of many things, most of which have to be bought from some retailer. But to sell, the seller must go to the market. It is sadly wrong if and when the seller waits for buyers to go to him. This means that the retailer who wants to supply many buyers must take his merchandise, in a figurative sense, to where buyers are assembled.

And the assembly place of buyers—men, women and children—is his newspaper. In the form of advertisements retailers display their wares. Every advertisement can be likened to a stall. These retailers' stalls get a close inspection of buyers. They are scanned to see if they show things of necessity or desire, and when the offerings of these stalls are in accord with buyers' wants and needs, then sales are made.

The retailer who loses out is he who has no stall—no advertisement at this place of assembly. His absence from the market place represented by the newspaper and its advertisements is advantageous to those who have advertisements in the newspaper.

The buying public wants its buying transactions made as easy as possible. It wants its time and its steps saved. It likes to find, in the comfort and peace of the home, what sellers have to offer. In the home decisions are arrived at. Women and others plan their shopping and their purchases in advance. Their newspaper is their informer. Retailers who neglect to provide buyers with information in the form of advertisements in our newspaper miss many sales. It is never economy to be silent about what one has to sell.

A Land Where Beauty Pays

Condensed from "Sweden" by Agnes Rothery

Several women of Sweden are sitting around a luncheon table when one of them leans forward and looks closely at a glass vase.

"Gale's design?" she asks. The hostess nods.

"Young Victor Lindstrand is turning out some rather interesting glass down at Orrefors," remarks one of the other guests. "But no one equals Hald," the fourth woman declares. The ladies' observations have not been profound, but they have been significant. These four women are typical of thousands in Sweden who are designing glass and china, pewter and silver. They know the work shops where textiles are being woven and those where iron is being hand-forged. A new idea in wall paper by Einar Forseth is interesting to them and his name is mentioned in connection with it as we mention the name of a popular detective story writer who has just brought out a new mystery.

There is no country in the world today where one finds such uniformly charming taste in every household appointment, where the ordinary object is treated more pleasingly by designer and workman, and where that object is so appreciated by the average purchaser. For, since 1915, a tremendous renaissance in the arts and crafts has swept all over Sweden. Those who have won fame in the fine arts have not felt that they were demeaning themselves in designing beautiful plates, water jugs, fruit dishes, garden urns, pottery, kitchenware. The manufacturers not only pay the artists for their work but advertise their names also. A shopper will ask for a plate designed by Kage, a pewter candlestick from Strand pottery, or a book nobly bound by Viktor Astrom. These names—these products—are familiarly known, popularly appreciated, and widely purchased. Swedish manufacturers have discovered that "beauty pays."

How did all this come about? Did 10,000 Swedes suddenly rise up and declare: "Away with imitation Oriental rugs! Away with ugly tableware and hideous lighting fixtures! We shall have beauty in the humblest arts as well as in architecture and sculpture!"

No. The present renaissance of arts and crafts is the result of a definitely organized movement led by the Swedish Arts and Crafts Society, which is primarily concerned with mass production of inexpensive articles to be purchased by thousands. Obtaining a government subsidy, the Arts and Crafts Society has turned itself to rousing the interest of the middle class and the educated laboring class with the slogan "Eat below your earnings, dress according to them, and establish your home above them." Lectures and pamphlets and many exhibitions were part of the educational program. Public interest grew. Public taste quickened. It became fashionable to think and talk about "More beautiful things for everyday life."

Next the manufacturers were persuaded that the production of "more beautiful things" would be profitable. The manufacturer at first was wary. Like the moving picture producer, he was inclined to believe that public taste cannot be improved. He had to be shown that it had improved. He had to be brought in contact with artists and had to learn that the best results were obtained not from buying patterns from a designer, but by incorporating the man himself into the scheme of production. This co-operation between manufacturer and artist has been successfully secured in so many instances that it serves as a model to the rest of the world.

In addition to the excellence achieved in factory products, there has been a revival of interest in weaving in the home and in a delightful array of handmade wood, metal, bone, and wicker articles. In a country where the winters are extremely long there is not enough occupation upon the farms for the entire year. The revival of handicrafts meant both occupation and financial return.

Since handmade goods can compete with mass production only on a basis of quality, they are not cheap and the earnings of the weavers are a definite addition to the family income. The Swedish government, while it has never subsidized these products, does subsidize the educational facilities. Today there are weaving schools so excellent that pupils come to them from every civilized country. The popularity of peasant textiles has been immense. Curiously enough, their archaic singularity of pattern and their strong colors were found to combine effectively with modernistic settings. It has become the prevailing fashion for public buildings, the palatial Swedish-American steamships, and government offices to use valuable handmade native rugs, carpets, curtains, linens, and damasks instead of imported Oriental goods or machine-made foreign fabrics.

Equally striking is the interest in glass, in which the artists have evolved fragile forms so fine and clear, so piercingly perfect, that today, throughout her brief summer, Sweden glitters in glacial radiance. They have been manufacturing glass in Smaland for nearly 200 years, but not until Simon Gale and Edward Hald began to design for Orrefors in 1917 did the craft flower into an exquisite art. Engaged by this now famous factory as chief designers with full powers to carry out their ideas, these two artists had the peculiar gift of "thinking in glass."

Gale's bold adaptation of nude human figures and Hald's delicate tracery created an entire new realm of fantasy and craftsmanship. Summoned forth by Gale's imagination, an enchanted race of dancers, dancers, and hunters were transfigured in fluid rhythm. Splendor too, was wrought upon surfaces clear as water, thin as light. Hald engraved his forms in arabesque. Magical roads wind up the sides of his vases with delicately conventionalized men and women ascending them. From the remote hamlet of Orrefors a fabulous and lovely world has gleamed into visibility, and glass has become a medium for ethereal movement and rhythm. The artists conceived this universe, master blowers and engravers executed it. In due time beauty lovers from all over the world came crowding to delight in it.

The chefs-d'oeuvre of Hald and Gale were necessarily unique pieces. But their icy loveliness ran crackling through the veins of the entire industry. Pressed, cut, blown, etched, white and tinted glass, were lifted from their old commonplace forms. No longer many museums and millionaires alone possess Orrefors glass, but everyone may drink his water, beer, or wine from graceful goblets of sea-green, smoke color, or broken brown. The humblest room may be illumined by lighting fixtures which are exactly and pleasingly appropriate.

The movement towards creative imagination combined with good taste pushed into other crafts. In Pewter, iron, copper, and bronze—in handsome grates, radiators, locks, fences, benches, and fountains—the sculptor, architect and iron-worker are co-operating to bring art back into industry. Indeed every field of the decorative arts is pushing with warm new life. The practical idealists of Sweden in restoring her handicrafts and improving her standard of mass production, have given to the artists of Sweden a divine fire. And when one surveys this sparkling and vigorous land, heaven and earth seem alight with that creative glow which occasionally surges through a nation.

Equally striking is the interest in glass, in which the artists have evolved fragile forms so fine and clear, so piercingly perfect, that today, throughout her brief summer, Sweden glitters in glacial radiance.

THE SIGN OF A FAIR DEAL

THE Three-Star Imperial oval sign marks a place where you can buy with confidence; where you can be sure of good value and full measure.

It is the symbol of an organization that has steadily improved the quality and consistently reduced the price of petroleum and petroleum products—for gasoline prices today are lower than ever before.

The Three-Star Imperial oval sign stands for a fair deal to all: to you, the consumer, and to the labor engaged in making and marketing Imperial products. The thousands of Imperial Oil workers are well treated. Five thousand of them are part owners of the Company. They are paid good wages. They have sickness and death benefits and old age pensions which mean that in affliction or old age they and their families do not become dependent on funds which must be raised by taxation.

Because they are fairly treated, Imperial Oil employees work loyally, enthusiastically and enterprisingly. That is why, through the years, it has been possible steadily to improve the quality and consistently to lower the price of Imperial gasoline and oils.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bibby, Jr., left at the week end for their new home in Edmonton. They have taken up residence there on the South side of the city.

Special coach fares are being advertised by the C.N.R. for a visit to Saskatoon, May 27th—June 1st. See the advt. on another page.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Walberg were trippers to the city for a couple of days last week.

Cars kill, maim and destroy more property and lives than the Great War. Statistics prove that of every three children one of them will be injured in a car accident. This causes enormous lawsuits. Most car owners are insuring against this trouble; if you are not insured call up Joe Welch at 57.

Miss L. Bespore was in town for a day or so with her parents here, before returning to her occupation in
the city.

Messrs Irvine and Lorraine of the Wawanesa insurance company were in town last week on business.

Mrs. Jean Wiley returned from her trip to the city last week end driving her new Pontiac coach which she procured through Steve Bowerman.

Mr. Lloyd Everett is having a house built on his farm north of the river, and Messrs Tory and Stang are busily engaged on this contract.

Last week saw the removal of the Ed. Messier family to the house recently vacated by Mrs. Elfrida Messier on Fifth avenue east.

The Atlas Lumber Co. have unloaded a car of 7, 8, 10 and 14 ft.
tamarack posts this week; also a car of plaster, lime, stucco and plaster board. Get your supplies at once from

A few sets of tennis played during the past few days has marked the opening of the local courts on the depot grounds for this season and a little attention given to the courts by those in charge wouldn't go amiss.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. D. Wallace on his success in passing his first year tests at varsity where he was one of the "Med."
freshman.

We are glad to learn that Mr. Eldon Rudd who was operated upon at the hospital on Saturday for appendicitis is getting along nicely and feeling better.

"Vanished! A hand or something snatched it!" See "Spooks" by the Wainwright Dramatic Club at the theatre on Thursday, May 30th. Reserved tickets at the Standard Pharmacy.

Mr. A. B. Bennett, the Federal government scale inspector was in town at the week end, giving all the local weighing appliances the "once over"—and of course collecting the taxes on same.

Rev. T. E. Armstrong of the United church is away to Calgary this week in attendance at the annual conference. He left on Monday accompanied by Revs. J. Geason of Irma, and W. Bainbridge of Edgerton.

On business bent in the interest of the Gold Standard Oils, Mr. B. F.
Beaubier was a visitor to Provost,
Battleford, Manville and other places
during the past week.

Must we again remind the boys and girls with bicycles to keep off the sidewalks. Don't say we didn't warn you! Complaints have been registered, and you will have to bear the consequences. The riding of these vehicles on sidewalks is a dangerous practice and must be stopped.

On Sunday next, May 27th, owing to the absence of the pastor at annual conference in Calgary, the Young People's organization will have charge of the service at the United church at the evening worship.

Arrangements have been made for the town baseball boys to attend the big sports' day at Vermilion on Friday next, and we extend hope of their return bringing first money from the tournament.

The Hillcrest M.D. Council are working hard to obtain a direct road from Czar to Wainwright by way of the National Park.

CUTWORM CONTROL

Although the farmer knows much about the matter, the amateur gardener little suspects that long before he sows his highly-prized seeds an enemy has been waiting in preparation for immediate assault. This is the cutworm which attacks all kinds and conditions of plants, and so far as agriculture is concerned, is such a menace that each year the Dominion and Provincial Departments of Agriculture publish the latest intelligence on the most effective means of countering the ravages of this destructive pest. Bran bait, says the Dominion Department of Agriculture, has given most effective control for many years and it is made up as follows: bran 20 pounds, Paris green one-half pound, molasses 1 quart, and water 21 gallons. In making the bait, the dry ingredients should be mixed thoroughly first.
The molasses is then stirred into the water and this solution added to the bran and Paris green. In mixing the bait, only enough water should be added to reduce the material to the consistency of wet sawdust. The mixture must not be made sloppy but should be so that it will crumble in the hands and slip through the fingers easily. Land that was heavily infested last year should be treated before the plants are set out. This is done by broadcasting the bait at the rate of 15-20 pounds per acre
a few nights before transplanting.
The bait should be spread in the evenings just before dusk, and, if possible, on a still warm night.

JUST REMINDERS

Mincd ham and chopped green pepper make a tasty filling for dev-illed eggs.

When making coleslaw or cabbage salad, add half a small onion shredded fine and mix with the cabbage.
It improves the flavor.

When you are baking roast beef,
a tablespoon of brown or white sugar added to the gravy improves the flavor and color.

A little vinegar poured into a macepan in which onions have been fried will remove the odor of onions from the pan.

Use a putty knife when trans-planting tiny seedlings. A putty knife, takes up with the seedlings the earth that protects the roots and prevents their being broken.
